

LOCAL NEWS.

MILITARY.—The volunteer companies of our city, Georgetown, and Alexandria, having determined to hold an encampment for military instruction and discipline, assembled in convention on last Friday evening, and made choice of the following officers: Captain Richard France, W. L. Infantry, Colonel; Captain M. Snyder, Mount Vernon Guards of Alexandria, Lieut. Colonel; and Captain R. E. Duvall, Morgan Riflemen of Georgetown, Major. It was resolved that the encampment should commence on the 15th of May, and continue four days; and the Mall south of the canal in this city was selected as the ground for the encampment. Most of the companies are provided with tents, and camp equipage; and from their excellent selection of a commander, we may safely expect an animating and interesting military display.

CHEROKEES.—John Ross, the distinguished Cherokee, and formerly principal chief of the nation, arrived in this city yesterday, and put up at Fuller's City Hotel.

CONCERT.—Signor Lacarcel, it will be seen by the advertisement, will give his Farewell Concert this evening at Concert Hall, upon which occasion he will be assisted by Messrs. Hewitt and Duffield, and other gentlemen. Lovers of good music should not permit this occasion to pass unimproved.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE FOR MAY.—This justly celebrated favorite has made its appearance, as usual, in advance of its contemporaries. Contains two splendid engravings, besides the plate of fashions. We have glanced over its pages with pleasure, and shall take the liberty of extracting some articles. It can be had at G. Brooke's periodical agency, Pennsylvania avenue, next door to Beers's American Hotel.

A meeting of the CLAY CLUB for business will be held at Concert Hall on Saturday evening next. Those desirous of signing the Constitution are invited to attend. As it is expected final arrangements will be made for attending the Convention of Ratification, a general attendance is desirable.

By order: JNO. T. TOWERS,
A. B. CLAXTON,
Secretaries.

TWENTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1844.

SENATE.

Mr. WOODBRIDGE presented the petition of William J. Moody, who was a soldier in the late war, wounded, and had his arm amputated—being thus disabled, he asked for an increase of pension.

Mr. TAPPAN presented a memorial from the Mayor and Council of Cleveland, Ohio, asking Congress to aid them in erecting a marine hospital at that place, for the relief of seamen disabled on the Northern lakes.

Mr. BUCHANAN, a memorial from the Pennsylvania Society for the promotion of the abolition of slavery. He did not know whether to present it in open or closed session, as it related chiefly to the subject of the annexation of Texas, the treaty for which was not before us yet, but which, rumor said, shortly would be. As the society was of an ancient date, established under the auspices of Franklin, and had existed for more than fifty years, he moved the reference and printing of the memorial. It was referred, and the question of printing was referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. BAYARD, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported House bill No. 189, making appropriations for naval services, without amendment.

Mr. EVANS, from the Committee on Finance, reported the bill from the House, providing for the payment of Revolutionary and other pensions, with a recommendation that the Senate concur in the amendments made by the House. On motion of Mr. E., the bill was considered now and passed.

Mr. CRITTENDEN introduced a bill to provide for defending the interests of the United States against certain claims to alleged grants of land in Florida.

Mr. MILLER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, made an unfavorable report on the petition of Mr. Eap.

Mr. BAYARD called up House bill 188, making appropriations for the use of the navy. The bill appropriates the sum of $116,000, the amount received into the Treasury for the sale of condemned naval stores, and is to take the place of a bill, passed some time since, to authorize the transfer of appropriations from one branch of the service to another, and which, from its restrictions, was inoperative. After some remarks in opposition to it by Mr. HAYWOOD, the bill was passed.

POST OFFICE BILL.

The rest of the sitting was occupied with this bill.

A discussion of some length arose upon an amendment, submitted by Mr. FOSTER, to the 9th section, which section materially changes the existing franking privilege.

Mr. BUCHANAN was of opinion that nothing could be done to good purpose in bringing about any change in the existing system, without entirely abolishing the franking privilege. We could not retain this and have cheap postage too. He should vote against the bill unless it contained this provision.

At a subsequent stage of the debate, Mr. McDUFFIE moved the indefinite postponement of the bill, but afterwards withdrew the motion, and the Senate continued the discussion, without final decision, until the adjournment.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. WELLER, on leave, presented the proceedings, with an accompanying memorial, of the delegates, assembled in convention, for revising the charter of the city of Washington; which was laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

Mr. ADAMS presented a memorial from B. F. Butler, and others, of the National Institute; which he moved to have referred to the Joint Committee on the Library, and printed.

Mr. HALE asked for a division of the question; he did not object to the reference, but the House had repeatedly refused to print memorials unless from States and Territories—he objected to the printing. The memorial was referred.

Mr. C. J. INGERSOLL called for the orders of the day, and the Speaker proceeded to call upon committees for reports.

Mr. McKAY, from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported a bill making provision for the support of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1845.

Mr. COLLAMER, of Vt., reported a resolution, from the Committee on Manufactures, for the printing of 10,000 extra copies of Mr. Hudson's document on the tariff.

Mr. C. J. INGERSOLL moved to amend, by adding 10,000 copies of his report in the Amrit case, and the Speaker decided, that, under the rules, the resolution must lie over one day.

Mr. VINTON reported Senate bill No. 6, amending the act establishing the Northeastern boundary line of Ohio, and, as it had been read twice, asked that it might be put on its passage.

Mr. DODGE said that the rights of the Territory he represented were affected by this bill, and he protested against its summary passage. It was then referred to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

FRENCH SPOILIATIONS.

Mr. C. J. INGERSOLL, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a bill providing for the ascertainment of claims of our citizens to indemnity for spoiliations committed by France prior to 1800.

Mr. DROMGOOLE asked what amount the bill appropriated.

Mr. C. J. INGERSOLL: No amount. It provides for a commissioner, and appropriates $1,200 to pay the expense.

Mr. DROMGOOLE called for the reading of the bill, and it was read. It provides for a commission to sit in the city of Washington, and to take evidence in reference to these long neglected claims. The bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HARDIN, of Ill., from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill appropriating $50,000 for the erection of an Armory at Old Fort Massac, on the Ohio river.

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a bill for the settlement of the claims of Richard Meaders.

Reports having been concluded, great confusion followed in setting upon the priority of business, and the House resembled an engraving we have seen of "a school in an uproar."

THE SPEAKER, at length, decided that the Western Harbor bill was first in order. The bill was before the House on its passage. Mr. DOUGLASS, of Ill., made an argument in favor of the bill, and adduced the authority of Gen. Jackson upon the subject of "Internal Improvements." He contended that as to the constitutionality of appropriations for the improvements of harbors there was no doubt upon the subject.

Mr. RHETT denied this, and called for proof. Mr. GIDDINGS cited the first Congress, which ever met, and which made appropriations for the improvement of the Delaware river.

Mr. DOUGLASS said all our Presidents had sanctioned the same by signing and approving bills. He asked whether the Charleston harbor appropriations were constitutional, in the view of the gentleman from South Carolina?

Mr. HOLMES here came to his colleague's rescue, and said these appropriations were unconstitutional also.

Mr. D. said he was glad to have driven the gentleman to this dilemma, but the same gentleman had maintained, at this very session, that appropriations for the Ohio and Mississippi rivers were constitutional.

Mr. HOLMES reasserted this, and found the special power for this purpose under the ordinance of 1787.

Mr. D. said that appropriations were no more constitutional for these rivers than for their tributaries or the lakes. No President had pointed out a difference—there was none in fact. His view of the subject was this, that objects were local were not constitutional, but that those which were national, were. Those who took a different position left the democratic platform, and not he.

Mr. RHETT responded, and discussed the powers under the constitution. He classified the old Republican, and the modern Democratic parties, and claimed political kindred with the gentleman who had preceded him, and was therefore the more surprised at the difference between them. He thought the gentleman claimed the most latitudinarian powers.

Mr. D. interrupted Mr. R. frequently, and there was a considerable "short hand" debate between them.

Mr. R. finally grew warm, and declared his entire want of respect for the understandings of gentlemen who maintained the distinctions set forth.

It was clear to the common sense of any man, that if you could make appropriations for one of these objects, you could for another. He did not regard the amount of money involved, but contended for the principle, which bore directly upon the best interests of the Government. Mr. R. spoke with great zeal against the entire object of internal improvements, and argued that if the views of the gentleman from Illinois were correct, Pennsylvania, and any other State which had contracted debts for internal improvements, could call upon the General Government to assume them, for these works were as much for the public benefit as the improvement of Illinois rivers.

Mr. HOLMES insisted that he was not driven into the support of internal improvements by the light of any local fact. All the argument that he had heard was that Gen. Jackson was in favor of internal improvements, ergo they were constitutional.

Mr. DOUGLASS said he could give him another name, that of John C. Calhoun.

Mr. HOLMES said he cared neither for the opinion of the one or the other in a question of this kind. He was discussing a constitutional question, and would be ashamed to bolster himself with the opinion of any man.

Mr. DOUGLASS again came to the contest, and was talking about Gen. Jackson's opinions, when Mr. RHETT said, "Gen. Jackson again!" he would scorn to pin his faith to any great man's sleeve.

After this interesting breach between these loving Locofocos, and the disposal of some questions of order, a vote was taken upon an amendment, increasing the appropriation for the Ohio river from 50 to $100,000, and the same was agreed to by 90 to 87.

The next amendment was to strike out the word Nabash, (which had been inserted in committee) and upon this, also, the yeas and nays were taken, and were yeas 41, noes 133.

The next amendment was for increasing the appropriation for the Ohio river, below the falls at Louisville, from 180,000 to $223,000. The yeas and nays were again called, and were yeas 85, nays 92; so the amendment made in committee was rejected.

The next amendment was one offered by Mr. KENNEDY, of Ia., upon which he moved the previous question, but which he afterwards wished to change, finding that he had made a mistake, and offered the wrong amendment—but the previous question had been seconded, and the previous question, for once, returned to plague the mover. Pending this matter, The House adjourned.

It would be needless to enter into detail in regard to the merits of those pianos, as the manufacturers' names are a sufficient guaranty of their excellence, both in point of tone and durability, as I am authorized in saying that, in eighteen years' manufacturing, then has never been one piano returned as being defective.

Ladies and gentlemen in want of a superior piano, will do well to call at the Piano Waremour before purchasing elsewhere.
